2. The SOP. “We shall not be moved.” These four words shall become your mantra. It is important to understand that the SOP is more than just a letter in an email. In fact, in my opinion, it is the only letter that should be ignored. Why? Well... An email is a primary way to communicate. Most people have at least one email account. The vast majority of people have at least three email accounts. These are @yahoo.com, @hotmail.com and @gmail.com, perhaps with a @facebook.com or @myspace.com. On the other hand, a SOP is a core document that comes out of your business's daily operations. This document should be the SOP for your company's: First and foremost, this is your SOP for your business. The paper for/copies of this document should be displayed prominently in your office or on the wall of your workspace. Secondly, everyone in the company should have a copy of this document. After all, even the copy clerk/receptionist must know what your SOP is. Third, you should have a hardcopy of this document, and this should be your #1 business tool. This document should be right next to your phone. I'm willing to bet your corporate phone is not yet out of paper. Fourth, there should be a database set up with several fields. One of
