I can get all of them except for the one that the user is on (the index I'm currently on). class Product { @PrimaryKey var id: String? = null @Ignore var name: String? = null @Ignore var description: String? = null var price: Float? = null @Ignore var imageUrl: String? = null @Ignore var category: String? = null var dateAdded: String? = null override fun toString(): String = "product[$id, $name, $description, $price, $imageUrl, $category, $dateAdded]" } I've tried getLastKey() and getLastEntryKey() but I keep getting null. How do I get the last key? A: When you add a new element to Realm, the current value will be updated. If you want to retrieve the last element of a Realm, you need to query it. var prodList = realm.where().equalTo("id", "1").findAll() var prodListEnd = prodList.last() // retrieve the last element in the list To access the last element, you'll need to use findFirst() or findLast(). If you don't want to add the last element to the list, you can use update(Product) on a database transaction to reset the value. realm.beginTransaction() realm.createObject(Product::class.java, "id", 1) realm.createObject(Product::class.java, "name", "blah blah") realm.createObject(Product::class.java, "description
