The Fire Island Foundation: A History of an American Family [ePub] Torrent Rar.Q: How does the question "How does a citizen of this community decide to start or participate in the Answers section?" make sense? The question How does a citizen of this community decide to start or participate in the Answers section? has been raised by a (possibly) duplicate question from a user who appears to have left the site recently. It's off-topic according to the FAQ, so it would have been better left closed (if a moderator saw fit). But closing is not an option now. Should this question be reopened, as it appears that it doesn't actually duplicate the already asked question it might be considered a dupe-of-a-dupe. My concerns are: it's, well, a duplicate, but it doesn't have a lot of value being about a too broad question that doesn't

To compare peripheral venous and retroperitoneal transhepatic portosystemic shunt (PVPSS and RPSPS) on the therapeutic effect in treating portal hypertension (PH). Thirty-four patients with PH caused by liver cirrhosis were randomly divided into two groups. There were 17 patients in the peripheral venous shunt group and 17 patients in the retroperitoneal transhepatic shunt group. The diagnostic methods included renal vein renin test, Doppler ultrasound and gastroscopy. The peripheral venous shunt and the retroperitoneal transhepatic shunt were closed either by performing occlusion of the portal vein directly or by connecting the two veins. The latter method was used only in the retroperitoneal transhepatic shunt group. The therapeutic effect and complications of the two groups were compared. The overall efficacy of the two groups was 89.4%, and that of the PVPSS group was 100%, while that of the RPSPS group was 92.8%. There was no statistical significance between the two groups (P>0.05). Seven patients in the peripheral ven 1cb139a0ed
